philanthropist and heir to a General Motors fortune, will speak on government reform, population control and disarmament.

If you want to know how not to become a victim of crime, then don't miss the March 29th Forum when a six-member committee of convicted offenders will give their insights into crime prevention. The series will conclude on April 26 with Barbara Sizemore, the new superintendent of the District of Columbia Public Schools, who will speak on the educational problems which are preventing maximal learning in our schools.

A dinner will follow each of the hour long lectures, which are scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Registration is January 14-25 with a $14 fee for the entire series including dinner. Call 575 for further information.

AROUND AND ABOUT

--Work began last week on the installation of directional and informational signs on the campus. Signs will be placed on the mall indicating building locations and parking areas. Barring major delays due to inclement weather, work should be completed in approximately 90 days.

--The College is the recipient of over $9,000 from the Morgan Owens Foundation of Little Rock, Arkansas. Monies from the Morgan R. Owens Memorial Fund have been designated to be used for scholarships for Gallaudet students from the state of Arkansas.

--Welcome to Hollace Bergan and Jeff Shupe, who have recently joined the Accounting Office staff.

--Read any good books lately, but have been somewhat lax in getting them back

FORUM TO OPEN SECOND SEASON

The Gallaudet Forum, a four-part series of Friday evening dinner lectures, will be offered for the second season this spring. Sponsored by the Center for Continuing Education, the Forum will feature four guest lecturers from the areas of communication, philanthropy, crime prevention and education. This year's theme will be "keeping up with the world."

"The Joy Boys," Ed Walker and Willard Scott from WWDC radio will open the Forum on January 25 with their particular brand of radio humor and philosophy. Then on February 22, Stewart R. Mott, "avant garde"

A REPORT ON ACUPUNCTURE

In an article appearing in the December issue of The American Annals of the Deaf, Dr. Laszlo Stein reported on research findings on acupuncture presented at two recent otology-audiology meetings.

Several otologists and researchers have been investigating the effects of acupuncture on deafness. One otologist has been experimenting on himself and volunteer patients. Following the proper insertion of acupuncture needles he found that the treatment did relieve back of the neck tension headaches but did not relieve ringing in the ears or restore hearing.

As Dr. Stein pointed out, "Not only does acupuncture not help, but it is not entirely a harmless procedure to be practiced by anyone. Had the acupuncture needles been inserted at certain designated locations to the stipulated depth, the patient might have been seriously maimed or even killed."

In addition, there is not a clear understanding of how the Chinese are defining deafness. "Both ancient and current Chinese sources on acupuncture state that most conditions present at birth or of long-duration do not respond to treatment."

If you receive inquiries regarding the advisability of acupuncture, please direct them to Robert Balas, Department of Audiology and Speech.
